A Statement from the Members of Wiesenfeuer

You may have heard about us from a friend, found us on a web search, saw our displays and demos at the Norman Medieval Fair or any number of local events or schools. Regardless of how you've found us, we're glad you did. The Barony of Wiesenfeuer is part of an organization called the Society for Creative Anachronism (SCA). It's an international organization dedicated to the researching and recreating the arts and skills of pre-17th century Europe. The "arts and skills" of Europe, and any people that Europeans had contact with, are far reaching in scope and depth. Arts include everything from making soap or butter, to making of instruments, woodworking, ... the list goes on. Anything that was made or done in the Middle Ages or Renaissance is fair game. Skills would include fighting, fencing, archery, thrown weapons, and all manner of games and talents played and practiced in six hundred years of history.

The SCA is a hands-on participation based way to learn about history. Hit your (armored) friends with rattan sticks, fence like a musketeer or pirate, or learn to shoot a bow like Robin Hood. Learn any number of arts and crafts from people that have developed skills and techniques for making and doing things the way they were centuries ago.

Beyond the competitions and projects, the royalty and ceremonies, the SCA is all about having fun. The Society is a great place to meet people with similar interests, make new friends, and be involved. So come out to an event, go to a meeting, or contact our hospitler at <http://wiesenfeuer.ansteorra.org>.

Welcome to Wiesenfeuer!!

Message from the Seneschal:

Greetings Wiesenfeuer!

Welcome to the awesome Barony of Wiesenfeuer! We're so hot that we make the temperature in July look cool. As of this writing, July is slowly wrapping up with Pennsic War and the Middle Eastern Symposium going on. Please note that I will be traveling to Pennsic and will be out of the Kingdom during our August populace meeting. Have no fear though! My awesome deputy, Lady Angelina Francesca de Nardi, will be here.

We have Braggart's War, which will be down in Chico, Texas, coming up towards the end of August. This is a fun event with many things to participate in. Many of our members are already making plans to attend. Please feel free to go and participate as well.

We have decided to move our Baronial event to April 26th in 2019 as the current scheduled PED date would have us holding our event on Easter weekend which has shown a tendency to reduce the amount of people that would normally attend. We are looking into potential sites and accepting event steward bids for Baronial.

We also have some officer's still looking for deputies. Please look at our website and reach out to any officer that oversees the position that you're interested in.

Long Live the Dream!

In Service,

HE Aldric de Kerr

Message from the Archery Marshall:

Greetings archery shooters! There is constant up keep of equipment in archery, fletchings get damaged, arrows bent, tips fall off, strings need wax, etc. The August 5th-12th I am opening my schedule and shop to those who need assistance fixing your gear, anytime between 8a-8p on any of those days you may email or call me to schedule a time to come over and we will fix your gear, or build new gear if you need new arrows (keep in mind arrows take a few days due to dry time of the sealer, when you schedule wit me I'll tell you what you need to do in advance to help things along). Please schedule a time with me as far in advance as you can since I do work 8-5 everyday but can usually get off pretty easily with a day's notice at minimum. This will be done at my home, so when you schedule a time with me I will then give you my address. You are expected to get the equipment you need to fix your stuff, I can provide glue and tools but not the materials like fletchings, tips, nocks. I look forward to working with you.

Happy to help,

Wolff

Youth Combat<sup>3</sup>

Date: Wednesdays Time: 7pm - 8pm

Place: 1441 W Indian Hills Rd Norman, OK <sup>3</sup>

Youth combat is for boys and girls are 6 to 15 years. They fight with foam-padded weapons. There are 3 age divisions within the program; 6-9 years, 10-12 years, and 13-15 years. The armor requirements and the strength of blows allowed increase as a child progresses through the levels.

Beginning Equipment for Youth Combat:

Each new youth fighter should wear long pants, a long-sleeve shirt, closed-toe shoes, lightweight gloves, and groin protection. A parent or an adult designated by the parent needs to be present throughout the practice.

There is some loaner armor but anything you can provide yourself is helpful. Armor requirements vary by age but all ages will need a helmet with face guard (such as a hockey or lacrosse helmet) and a gorget (medium-weight leather with ½ inch closed-cell padding). Knee and elbow pads are required for the older kids and helpful for the younger. The full armor and weapon requirements and rules for combat may be found in the Complete Participants Handbook. This is available on the Kingdom Earl Marshal's website at <http://marshal.ansteorra.org/armored>. Of course feel free to contact your friendly local marshal with any questions!

Message from the Treasurer:

Hello Wiesenfeuer, this is your treasurer Seafara (Brandy). As of the end of June we have $9, 146. 17 in the baronial account. Of this amount $350. 03 is for the Canton of Haldtre and $86. 27 is for the Canton of Myrgenfeld. This means that the Barony of Wiesenfeuer has $8, 709. 87 available. As of this time this is all for budgeted expenses. Please let me know if you have any questions or comments that I can help with.

Seafara

Message from the Hospitaler:

We have a class coming up on beginners garb, watch the Facebook pages for time and date.

Anyone needing to borrow garb can call or email me at least 2 days before any event to arrange for access to the loan closet. The earlier the better.

Keep being awesome and try all the things!

Lady Maureen

The Scrolls of Time: Chapter 8

This is the eighth in a series of translations of the Lost Scrolls of Ian Cara Duinn Cac, Originally written by Ramhar Breadoir, ancient lore keeper of great historical magnitude, as translated by the scholars of the Harp & Lark Pub, County Cork, Ireland.

Chapter 8—Hostel Delight

Groggy and his vision blurry, Yendel awoke to the soothing caress of a cool damp cloth against his forehead. In the half-awareness that happens midway between sleep and consciousness, Yendel tried to focus, though not yet able to open his eyes. He hurt....all over, but especially around his back and chest. The gentle wiping of his face, neck, and shoulders was relaxing and helped him drift comfortably.

Not yet clear enough to wonder where he was, much less what had happened to him. He thought of opening his eyes, or was it a thought of rising up, or just the cool moist cloth gently and hypnotically caressing him by someone loving. "Wait," he thought, "Someone caressing me?" Slowly he sense the presence of another person, a shapeless form in a gray haze, attending to him. Gentle hands...caring hands....loving hands. "Wait" he thought, "Whose hands?"

The god was quickly interrupted by a harsh and frightening memory. An unclear image of a bony beast, shadows and wind, flowers and leaves tossed aside, hurry, earthshaking noise, frightened birds squawking, and then piercing pain from behind. He tried to rise, but a firm hand held his shoulder. "It's all right," she said, " You're safe now. Just rest."

For the first time, Yendel realized someone was with him. The thoughts raced together with increasing clarity....A female, caring for him with tender familiarity...who?...was he....could he be home? His heart raced. Could he be back on the crater floor with his brothers and sisters? "Krem d'lynn!!!" he blurted aloud and sat up. With sudden and inaccurate clarity, everything fell into its seemingly proper, but false place. Surprised by the sudden moement of her patient, the nurse-like figure shrieked aloud and fell backward alongside the bed, hurling a small copper bowl full of petal water and bandages into the air that crashed on the ground with a hollow ringing against the cold stone floor. Yendel sat straight up, barely noticing the surroundings (something far different from his home). His eyes darted to the veiled figure that now rose beside him from the floor.

In the sweetest, almost melodic voice, came the soft reply "I'm sorry. I didn't mean to frighten you. I only tried to help." She leaned closer, "I am not your sister, though you have spoken of her often the last few days. You must miss her greatly."

"Where am I, who are you?" Yendel interrogated, "What....?" Then he remembered everything. The garden....the tithing mantis. It all happened so fast. The last Yendel really remembered was trying to decide if it would be better to speak to the giant insect or to attempt to flee. He was mistrusting of prayer, remembering how Halthor's prayer was granted so unfortunately. He guessed he decided to run. He remembered being chased through the neat gardens by the large creature, gnashing its giant jaw vices and waving its barbed claw arms. He remembered thinking he would soon be eaten.

"My name is Zhul-Yet," she said. "I can help if you'll allow. You're safe now. He feeds during the early morning and at sunset. He'll not return for a while." Slowly she brushed herself, straightened her clothing and began to remove the silk scarf veil from her head.

Though Yendel heard the words, he seemed numb to the circumstances. He was mesmerized by the almost lyrical tone of her voice, the most beautiful voice he'd ever heard. Speech, not song, by melody. As she removed the last of the scarf, she turned and the light caught her form. Yendel was startled. He'd seen nothing like her before. Definitely a female, but a Tunarian female? He'd never seen one before. He'd never thought much about male or female Tunarians, he just knew they drew pleasure from terrorizing humans with their mischievous minstrel mayhem, and they were horridly ugly with beak like faces and beady eyes set close together against their protruding foreheads. Not at all like the males, she was almost...well, more than pleasant. Her eyes were soft blue and well set on her pear-shaped face. She didn't have the hairy hooked nose at all like the Tunarians he'd seen before. Though full and shapely, her lips were much more like humans....plump...and inviting. Her hands, though nimble, were delicate and well defined. She was....well....beautiful. Long, golden hair framed her cheeks and fell gently around her shoulders to her...

“You don't have any wings!” he noticed out loud.

“The mantis bit them off when he captured me...to keep me from flying away.”

Scholar's Note:

The prologue in Chapter Tqo referenced the Breadoir's hero in Gulivurturas, who, during his second journey through the land of giants, first recorded contract with the Tithing Mantis, an credited for giving it the scientific name spangelheiner non-preyonus.

In Chapter Four, the Scottish scholar's interpretation of the welcoming embrace by the French an Irish scholars following the untimely departure of the much beloved Welsh academic is speculative, ethnocentric, and probably a misrepresentation. In their censure, the Review Board suggested he spend more future focus on translation, and less on anecdotal ramblings.

In Chapter 5, the literal phrase span of his steps could also have been translated as stride. In addition, hut (see also haute/have/hauvel) from the noun hovel, is a generic term associated with a wide range of shelter-structures including nests and burrows (syn. slang crib). Finally, the term village literally translates as rock-bottom a colloquialism for the phrase collection of desperate or hopeless folk residing on the craggy floor of muddy craters.

In Chapter Seven, the phrase Butter Bulb contains a typographical error and should actually read Bitter Bulb emphasis added.
